Description of Smith.

Mrs. Moore describes Smith as a man of very bad expression, with a long apper lip, which is generally hidden by a short, sandy moustache, "He has yellow teeth, blue eyes, a high forehead and a bald pate," she added, "I would know him in any disgurbe."

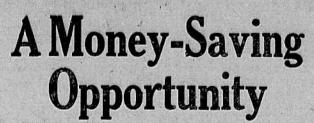

He was neatly dressed when seen yesterday. He wore a short tan overcoat, tan shoes, gray trousers, a brownderby hat and tan gloves. He was seen lurking in the neighborhood for some time prior to the time the theft was committed. His actions were not such as to attract attention.

Mrs. Moore says she will spend the remained of her life in the search for the child, and that if she is ever able to earn any money she will spend the last cent in tracking down the criminal.
